SECRETARY FLOYD ON THE SUMNER CASE, -Our readers are aware that the court-martial lately convened at Carlisle found Col. Sumner not guilty of any of the charges preferred against him, and that the Secretary of War has disapproved the finding of the Court. He entirely disapproves it. This decision of the Secretary has called forth in certain quarters some severe strictures, of which, we confess, we do not perceive the justice.

Col. Sumner was charged: first, with "conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline;" secondly, with "sending a challenge to another officer to fight a duel, in violation of the 25th of the articles of war;" and, thirdly, with "upbraiding another officer for refusing a challenge, in violation of the 28th of the articles of war." These were the charges on which he was arraigned. The case of course turned on the truth and pertinency of the specifications under them. The truth of the specifications, however, was not disputed. Let us glance at their | ertinency. It is admitted that Col. Summer sent the following note to General Harney, based on the latter's answer to a general court-martial which inquired of him in regard to his prejudice or bias against Sumner:

Sir: As more than twenty-four hours have passed since my note to you of yesterday, I have a riget to presture that you do not intend to answer it. I have, therefore, to invite you to leave this city with me to-morrow morning, to go to any place you may designate.

I send this note privately, to avoid committing any friend as long as possible. An early answer is requested. I am, with due respect,

E. V. SUMNER, Colonel 1st Cavalry.

Brevet Brig. Gen. W. S. Harnay, Col. 2d Dragoons.

It is also admitted, that, in reply to a note from General Harney declining this invitation, Col. Sum-

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16, 1858. WARHINGTON, Feb. 16, 1208.

Sin: I received with great surprise your note of last evening, and have only to say to you that a man who could insult a brother officer, from an official covert, and afterward refuse to applogise, or to give him that satisfaction which he had a right to demand, is unterry unworthy of which he had a right to describe the same further notice from me. I am. &c., E. V. SUMNER, Col. 1st Cavalry.
Brevet Brig. Gen. W. S. Harney, Col. 2d Dragoons.

Now, if Col. Summer, in the first of these two notes, didn't challenge Gen. Harney to fight a duei, and, in the last, upbraid him for refusing the challenge, and if doing all this in consequence of Gen. Harney's testimony before a Court-Martial is not te the prejudice of good order and military discipline, then the finding of the Court at Carlisle was right, and the Secretary's disapproval is wrong. The contrary being true, the finding of the Court was wrong, and the Secretary's disapproval is right. And what man of commen sense can say with a shadow of sincerity that the contrary isn't true? It is little else than trifling with men's judgment to argue so palpable a point.

Referring to the import of the notes we have quoted, the Secretary conclusively says:

Cel. Sumner's note of the 15th January is a challenge, within the meaning of the article of war. The mintary authoritis and the decisions of courts martial are clear in this regard. They lay down what is indeed, the necessary doctrine to give effect to the law, that "no particular phraseology, no set form, is necessary to a challenge," nor "a formal invitation to hight." but "a mere kint or suggestion" is sufficient, and even "such a defiance gas coasts the burden on the other party." As challenges are in violation of law, ingenuity is not uncommonly exercised to avoid a plain expression of their purpose. But these are artifices to defeat the law, which courts of law will never favor. And when the meaning is so clear as to be intengiarances to detect the law, when events of law will never favor. And when the meaning is so clear as to be inteligi-ble to the party who rec ives the challenge, it answers it purpose, and is intelligible to the truomal which tries it. In this case, however, the challenge is plainly expressed, even if it were not conclusively interpreted by the rest of the correspondence, and expressly as "a demand of sat-isfaction."

And, touching the general decision of the court, he adds with unanswerable force:

The doctrine of the findings in this case would render the article of war void and inoperative by inoleating a mode of doing without breach of the law which it is the exact propose of the law to forbid.

A rigid enforcement of strict discipline in the army is the most essential requisite for its honor and efficiency. If the bonds of discipline are soosened, it is only a question of time when the army will become a not, and public opinion will ascribe to it that character, even before it would be fairly entitled to it.

These are views and sentiments equally credit able to the judgment and spirit of the Secretary. They are every way worthy of his responsible position as the Head of the War Department of a great but youthful nation, in which the conditions of order and efficiency, in every branch of the public service, are as yet too commonly regarded as the vice, are as yet too commonly regarded as the by the importance incident. cess. We are still in the national gristle, so far as internal organization is concerned, and need, above all things, the strengthening, maturing influence of enlightened, inflaxible administration. It clearly is of the first necessity that the dignity of discipline should be vindicated. This is especially true of the army. If an officer is once permitted to incur the charge of cowardice by obeying the articles of war, the force of those articles is gone. They are or will become at most but snares to entrap the honor of unsuspecting persons. Obedience will come to be spurged as the refuge of weakness. If discipline fail to protect the bonor of those who are loval to it. no such thing as discipline can long exist. Brave men will scorn to submit to so frail and false a thing. And, in such an event, who could blame them? But this would be anarchy. An army without discipline, stric'ly enforced, is no better than an armed mob.

The country, therefore, is, we conceive, under no slight obligations to Secretary Floyd for the intelligence and firmness with which he has vindicated the discipline of the army in the present instance. While discharging his plain duty, he has performed a service of incalculable value to the public wel-

Mr. Bancroft once defined Democracy to be 'the supremacy of man over his accidents." The editor of the Boston Journal is sorely perplexed by this definition. "Accidents," he says, "are 'unusual effects from known causes.' Therefore Democracy is the supremacy of man over unusual effects from known causes. We are fearful that this definition will not convey a very clear idea of Democracy to most of our readers, and yet we are free to confess that we are unable to give a better one. We have turned it over and we have turned it round; we this morning. have looked at it from one point and then from another; we have almost caught the meaning-or thought we had-of the great expounder, but before we could put it into shape it floated off again, leaving us as much in the dark as ever." Really, we think our worthy contemporary does injustice to his own acuteness. Mr. Bancroft's definition of Democracy is a trifle metaphysical, but not at all obscure. The "accidents" to which he evidently refers are simply the artificial relations which grow out of the exercise of the human faculties, as distinguished from those faculties themselves. They are, plainly enough, such as birth, rank, wealth, condihigher than the stream it feeds. A principle trans- bly be raised without difficulty. cends its effects. Man is greater in himself than in his works. And Mr. Bancroft obviously means only that Democracy is the recognition of this inherent dignity of man, respecting, as Democracy does, the equal rights of all, without regard to outward distinctions. James Buchanan, to illustrate, is surrounded by the splendors of the first position in the nation. John Smith is a wood-sawyer. Their fortunes are widely different, yet, thanks to our wellneath this bewildering diversity of condition, and enthrones "man" above his "accidents." It seems to us that a more beautiful or philosophical definition of Democracy could scarcely be given.

XXXVTH CONGRESS-FIRST SESSION. Thursday's Proceedings Continued. WASHINGTON, March 25.

Senate -Mr. Iverson made an ineffectual attempt to take up the army bill.

The consideration of the Minnesota bill was then resumed.

The consideration of the Minnesota bill was then resumed.

The discussion was resumed on Mr. Douglas' motion to strike out the second section of the bill to the effect that the State shall be entitled to a representative and such additional as census may determise.

Mr. Douglas o'jected to the State being given three regresentatives in accordance with the actual population instead of with it complete census returns which only give two and a moiety.

Mr. Toombs and others propo ed technical amendments, but without vital difference of opinion, except Brown, who protested against apportioning the representation on guess work. He would vote for the admission of Minnesota because he wished to keep faith on the slavery question, but there are many portions of the constitution he objected to, especially the basis of franchise, which allows unnaturalized foreigners to vote, also half-breed Indians who have adopted habits of civilization, put on pants, spurious shirt collars, get drunk, and thus fixed up have fulfilled the constitutional essentials to the ballot box.

Mr. Wilson agreed with the Senator from Mississippi. We have only before us the legaj evidences of one hundred and forty-nine thousened inheritation.

Mr. Wilson agreed with the Senator from Mississippi. We have only before us the legaj evidences of one hundred and forty-nine thousand inhabitants and don't see why it should have three representatives. Vermont, with three hundred thousand, has only three. He was in favor of one representative now, and more as new census hereafter to be taken show the State to be entitled to. This would admit her now. She could then make a new census and send other additional members, even before this Congress adjourned.

Congress adjourned.

Nothing done except a desultory discussion on the clause regulating the number of representatives.

Mr. Johnson, of Tenu., was in favor of the section as it stands—denied that the Federal Government can go into a sovereign State to fix the qualifications of vectors as cations of voters.

Mr. Mason opposed three inasmuch as the consti-tutional proportion is one representative for 92,000, while Minnesota has only an official record of 149,- while Minlesota has only an official record of 149,000. Hence it is absolutely forbidden by the Federal Constitution to give her undue political weight.

Mr. Crittenden was for adhering strictly to the Constitution, and giving only one, upon conjectural computation, would be dangerous. Every representative from the old States now represents a large surplus, and it would not be fair to give a new State the apportionment of '58 while the old ones retain the apportionment of '56.

the apportionment of '58 while the old ones retain the apportionment of '50.

Finally, Mr. Toombs moved that Minnesota be permitted to have three representatives until her census be rectified, and thereafter such a number as the census may show her entilled to.

The Senate then went into Executive session without a vote, and shortly after adjourned.

House.—Mr. Grow spoke of the unjust and op-pressive attempt to force on the people of Kinsas a constitution against which they had protested in the most solemn forms. The people were lulled into security by Executive promises that the constitution should be submitted, but were betrated by fraud and violence, and now the last act of the drama is sought to be consummated.

He believed, with Jefferson, that "resistance to tyranny is obsdience to God." Those who submit tyranny is observed to God." Those who submit to u-urpation are worthy to be slaves. While an attempt is made to force on Kansas an odious des-potism and propagate human bondage, there can be no peace in Kansas.

Mr. Reidy maintained the legality of the proceedings attending the formation of the Lecompton con-stitution. He knew not what his fate would be for voting for the Kansas bill, but if his constituents think he had done wrong they have a right to send another to take his place.

Mr. Stephens announced that on Thursday next, at one o'clock, he would move to take up the Sena Kansas bill.

Mr. Davis, of Indiana, inquired by whom the arrangement was made.

Mr. Campbell explained, saying that various gentlemen had been consulted.

Mr. Grow had no objection to Mr. Stephens making the motion; that was as far as he (Grow) and his friends could go to-day. If all sides consent on Thursday the bill can be taken up.

Mr. Srephens said Mr. Grow correctly understood the matter. No motion will be made until Thursday. He designed nothing more than to move that on Thursday next the bill be taken from the Speaker's table.

Mr. Davis (of Ind.) said this was satisfactory to him and those with whom he acts.

him and those with whom he acts.

Mr. Montgomery wished to know whether Mr. Stephens would move to take up the bill merely for discussion or put it on its passage.

Mr. Stephens replied that he intended to move the previous question. If the majority want debate, ev can vote down the motion. Mr. Campbell said if the latter agreed to it the bill would be open to amendment or discussion at the pleasure of the House. He assured gentlemen that neither be nor Mr. Stephens desired to take advantage of either side of this arrangement. It seemed to be perfectly understood.

CLOSE OF THE KANSAS DEBATE IN THE SEN ATE -On Tue day, after the conclusion of Mr. Green's speech-

Mr. Crittenden briefly replied to some allusions which had been made to him in the speech of Mr. Green. He disclaimed any desire to build up the Republican party; but he thanked God that he had reason and conscience to point out the path of duty, and courage enough to pursue that path.

Mr. Green withdrew the amendment of which he had formerly given notice, in regard to admitting Minnesota and Kansas together, and moved to strike out the preamble and inscrithe following:

Whereas, the peorle of the Territory of Kan-as did, by a Convention of Delegates called and assembled at Lecompton on the 4th day of December, 1857, for that purpose, to form to themselves a constitution and State Gorernment, which said constitution is republican; and the said convention having asked the admission of said Territory into the Union as a State on an equal footing with the original States.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. G. then moved to amend the bill by adding after section two, line nine, the following:

And that nothing in this act shall be construed to abridge or infringe any right of the people asserted in the constitution of Kansas at all times to alter, reform, or abolish their form of government in such manner as they may think proper—Consress hereby disclaiming any authority to intervene or declare the construction of the constitution of any State, except to see that it he republican in form, and not in conflict with the Constitution of the United States.

The bill was reported to the Senate, and the amendments were concurred in. The question was then stated on the passage of the bill.

Mr. Iverson expressed his dissent from the second amendment offered by the Senator from Missouri (Mr. Green); and although he was in his seat when the year was taken on that question he had declined. (Mr. Green); and although he was in his seat when the vote was taken on that question, he had declined to vote, not wishing to be found in the company of the Republicans; for, when a boy, he had been told that if a pigeon got in among a flock of blackbirds, and a sportsman fired into the flock, the pigeon would be as likely to be killed as any of them. He, therefore, wished to keep out of bad company; but he could not by his vote recognize the right of the people of Kansas to change their constitution in any other form than that prescribed by that instrument itself. He should vote for the passage of the bill, however, notwithstanding the adoption of that amendment; but he would say that his interest in the bill had diminished very much since the publi-cation of the proclamation by Mr. Calboun that he would issue certificates is such a manner as to throw the government of Kansas into the hards of the Abolitionists. He believed that to be an act of usurpation; and he regretted to have heard it said that this step had been taken by the advice of Southern members. The effect would be to place the gov-erament of Kausa's in the hands of Abolitionists; and in less than six months the atmosphere of that State would be so hot that not a decent Southern man could stay in it. There would be a stampede of toat class of citizens. He regarded this as a vic-

THE EARTHQUAK AT NAPLES .- The Naples correspondent of the London Times communicates the following interesting intelligence concerning the recent earthquake in that kingdom:

I send you now the report of a gentleman of high character who spent man days in the afficted provinces, who was able to make accurate observations, and incapable of distorting feets. His narrative, and incapable of distorting fects. His narrative, which I took from his own lips, is as follows:

"My visit extended to Auletia, Pertosa, Polla, Sala, Padula, Tranutola, Saponara, Viggiano, Marsico Vietri, and Marsico Nievo, so that I witnessed some of the worst features of the recent disaster. It is impossible to deny that the Government has throughout displayed a great want of energy and attention; that such assistance as it has replayed base throughout displayed a great want of energy and attention; that such assistance as it has rendered has been most scouty and far too late, and that had it acted in any degree as the occasion demanded, one half of the lives now socificed might have been saved. The English money was the first that arrived for the relief of the unfortanate sufferers, and though every precaution that could have been well taken was observed by the Rev. Mr. Elliot and Dr. Strange, I was told in some places that the poor people had been mulcted of a portion of what foreign benevolence had left for them. Thus, instead or finding ten lence had left for them. Thus, instead of finding ten carlini wrapped up is their paper packet, they found not more than seven or eight carlini. This, if true, was the fault of those on the spot to whom the money was the failt of those of the spot to whom the honey had been consigned

"As to the bouses of refuge for the poor, said to have been built by the Government, we saw some cabins made, and heard that enormous prices had been asked on the spot, though I do not believe that this same that he was a former ment. In Polla. was with the concurrence of Government. In Polla I counted not more than 30 tents (and I now speak of the beginning of this month), though 100 are reported to have been made. In Montemurro the authorities said that they could not find wood for the thorities said that they could not find wood for the erection of cabins, though by a little exertion we did, and assisted in making one or two. In short, a general paralysis seems to have seized on those who ought to direct and assist, the effect, perhaps, of that system of centralization which forbids its subalterns to originate or do asything, and leaves them worse than children. I expressed an opinion that, had common energy been exerted, many lives might have been saved.

"Even to the extremest point of the disaster-to "Even to the extremest point of the disaster—to days and a half, or perhaps less, and then the great proportion of the sufferers might have been so out alive. Many were, in fact, dug out after the eighth day of burial. I saw a girl 15 years old, who had been recovered, and was now in good health. In Viagiano a man was found with two beams which had been recovered by the body but so that the removal Viggrano a man was found with two deaths which had fallen across his body, but so that the removal of them would have brought down the house. The poor people, ignorant though sympathizing, could do nothing for him. 'I am wounded,' cried the wretched sufferer; 'help me.' This was the third day of his burial. 'Give me to drink; help, for the love of his burial. 'Give me to drink; help, for the love of God,' continued the poor fellow, as the lingering hours passed away; but no effectual help came, no Government engineer, no persons who had not been shaken by the horrors they had witnessed. On the 5th day the poor wretch died.

"'On putting the ear to the ground you might have heard,' said the people, 'the sufferers underground crying, 'or groaning, or calling for assistance.' Where was it to be found? The dead, as well as the living, will rise up in judgment against ance.' Where was it to be found? The dead, as well as the living, will rise up in judgment against the negligence which has inflicted on them so much suffering. Many of the living are still in the roads houseless, or in ruins nearly falling, and many of the dead are yet under the ruins, in spite of what government may say. In Suponara a thousand victums have not yet been disinterred. I myself saw five dead bodies taken out nearly two months after five dead bodies taken out nearly two mooths after the occurrence of the disaster. 'We have had three scourges here,' said the people; 'first the earth-quake, then the oillage of the rich by the poor on the day after, and, later still, the pillage by the few soldiers who were sent down to assist.' They get into the cellars of one place, which was a great wine district, drank the wine, and laid hold of what wine district, drank the wine, and laid hold of what money they could.

"One gentleman was robbed of 6,000 ducats, after enduring the agony of seeing two daughters perish. Thus the richest became the poorest, and enormities were committed where common energy might have saved numberless lives; for in one piace, which suffered the most, perhaps, from this pillage, the people said that perhaps 3,000 bodies were still under the ruins. In Montemurro, with a population of from 7,000 to 8,000, 5,000 have been killed and 500 wounded. All traces of streets and roads are lost. In one place I saw a cabin, with 7 or 8 priests and as many women, and the people, who are always com-municative, and sometimes scandalous in their com-munications, spoke of them as almost one family. I met, however, with some most honerable exceptions, and especially in Perrosa, with a priest, who had by his own great exertions saved 40 lives. Of course, in such a trip as I have just completed a great number of interesting anacdotes might be narrated, all tending to the same end, proving the great negligible of the covernment and the great misery of the gence of the government and the great misery of the people. As an instance of it, I will mention that a gentleman begged, and was glad to receive five suit themselves, through the agency of a gentieman who tion to be called for that purpose. Mr. C. explained the various provisions of the bill; but after some discussion it was rejected—yeas 24, nays 34—as follows:

So much for the narrative of a gentieman who made an excursion through the scenes which have suffered from the earthquake. Another person from Sala, in confirmation of one part of the above statement, declared that on the completion of a government, tent or barrack an enormous price was dement tent or barrack an enormous price was de-manded of him, wholly past his means of payment, so that he and his family were compelled to remain without a place of refuge. I think it was in Padula that an old menastery existed uninjured, but the priests forbade its being appropriated to the use of the people, as being hely ground, and superstition compelled the poor to fly for refuge to houses which threatened to fall upon and bury them.

Lastly, an English gentleman just returned from the same district continus in general what I have stated above, and adds in detail that "in Padula es-pecially, and in other places, the stench from the pscially, and in other places, the stench from the dead bodies was so great that I could scarcely bear it. Great numbers are still disinterred, for there were not hands sufficient for the work. I never saw such misery in my life as I witnessed in one place. We flung among the poor people whatever money we had, and perhaps full 200 followed us for assistance. This widness was given to me by a certification. ance. This evidence was given to me by a gentle-man last night, February 23, and he had returned from the scene he describes only last week. I con-

from the scene he describes only last week. I content myself with stating facts, for, as to comments, the mind of every thinking, feeling man will make them as he reads. My informants would not deceive me, and were not likely to be deceived, for they were sober, sensible, truthful men.

Other interesting information of a scientific character they gathered, such as the following: About a mile from Viggiaso two cratters opened, one of which threw out ashes and another hot water, but both have closed. Over Polla and Tramutola, too, near the time when the earthquake took place, a flame was seen to hover, while the fountains in the latter place ceased to throw out water; afterwards, they ejected salphurous water, and in great quantities. My first informant, on the night of the 4th instant and on the following morning, felt seven shocks of earthquake while at Saponara; the sound which accompanied them was as that of the humming of a steam engine.

Future Wives of England.—My pretty little dears, man could stay in it. There would be a stampede of that class of citizens. He regarded this as a victory entirely without fruit, and as such he cared little or nothing about it; he should vote for the bill as a matter of principle, but thought the South would gain nothing by it.

Mr. Houston said he should vote for the bill, in accordance with the views of the Legislature of Texas.

Mr. Pugh said he should be reluctably compelled to east his vote against the bill, in obedience to instructions.

The vote being taken, the result was announced—ming of a steam-eagine.

Future Wines of England.—My preity little dears, you are no more it for matrimony than a pullet is to look after a family of fourteen chickens. The truth is, my dear girls, you want, generally speaking, more liberty and less fashionable restraint, more kitchen and less parlor, more leg exercise and less sofa, more making puddings and less piano, more frankness and less nock modesty, more breakfast and less bustle. I like the buxom, brighteyed, rosy-cheeked, full-breasted, bouncing lass, who can darn stockings, make her own frocks, mend with the vote being taken, the result was announced tronsers, command a regiment of pots, and shoot a wild duck as well as the Duchess of Marloro' or the Queen of Spain, and be a lady with all in the drawing-room. But as for your pining, sooping, screwed-up, wasp-waisted, putty-faced, music-murdering, novel-devouring daughters of fashion, and idleness with your consumption-soled silk stockings and eal-ies shirts, you won't do for the future wives and mothers of England.—Mrs. Ellis's Lectures.

To PARENTS AND GUARDIANS. - There is some poetry, but more truth in the following remarks:

There is a terdeacy in parents to be peculiarly tender in coercing the will of their girls, because girls are usually gentle; they forget that, like the air, the sea, and the light, it is the seeming soft that has the unmanageable force; and when they do coerce it, how often is it merely to please themselves instead of proving their own of edience to the unerring will. The perpetual indulgence of the Pawn endians to their children is safer than the perpetual waywardness that pretends to wisdom while showing folly. Neither man nor woman can rule the will of a child without ruling their own, and from first to last, we all require to see, and so to believe in, a to last, we all require to see, and so to believe in, a better will than our own in order to real obedience. We never cordially yield but where we cordially love. It would be a calumny uttered in the face of truth to say that woman is necessarily more thought-less than man; her active outlay of benevolence in all the best schemes for the amelforation of human misery, in our age and country at least, is a demon-stration that the loving heart is a help rather than a hindrance; when thought is to proceed to action, and when doing and suffering are demanded to prove the validity of intellectual vigor.

We reed not look into the hospital of Scutari to

We need not look into the hospital of Scutari to prove what is meant by a wise heart, for we have it at work about us in many a home, that, without it, would fall crushing to pieces, like the house built on the sand. But this wisdom of heart does not come as a natural matter of course; and the accomplishments so sedulously entityated at ladies' schools in general do not foster it. We fear rather the contrary, for there is nothing in the teaching of pianists, drawing masters, posture masters, elocutionists, and memory leaders, to instruct woman in the duties and dangers of real life, or to fortify mind and heart for the grand battle. The education that forms a correct mind is too often sacrificed for that which makes a pert critic, who sees faults, for that forms a correct mind is too often sacrificed for that which makes a pert critic, who sees faults, not to shun but to point at them. A carping young 1-dy may be pretty, but she is sure to be a pest. THE EXPERIENCE OF A LAND OFFICE AGENT.—
Through the kinduess of a friend we are allowed to publish the following private letter from a distinguished friend, John C. Turk, well known in this community, and now enjoying the emolments of a Nebraska land office, under the protection of Uncle Sam. The writer gives a graphic and truthful picture of border life. ture of border life:

DAKOTAH CITY, N. T., March 7, 1858. Dear Sir: Your letter of February 3 has been on Dear Sir: 1 our letter of February 3 has been on my table for several days, unanswered, but since its receipt I have been compelled to make two trips to Sioux City, on court business, there having been a special term of court holden there, and the last time, coming home, the ice gave way as we were crossing the river, and I had the misfortune to get crossing the river, and I had the misfortune to get in and the good fortune to get out again. The water was running very rapidly and was very deep, in consequence of which Uncle Sam was very near losing one of his most valuable officers; but I managed to make my "second appearance on earth" and scrambled out, suffering no more at the time than a ground depting and since then, with a severe old. good ducking, and since then, with a severe cold, as I had to walk home, five miles, through the mud, with my wet clothes on. I would not care to repeat the experiment, even in the expectation of the good fee, which I didn't get.

I can get plenty of business to do, particularly in the Sioux city courts, but no money. I don't be-the Sioux city courts, but no money. I don't believe there is $25 in the whole place, and that only lieve there is $20 in the whole place, and that only circulates in the "whisky shops."

I am all alone in the effice now—Mr. Patrick, my associate, having gone East for a wife. I wish I was in a condition to follow his example. But here I am, poor devil, away out on the prairies alone, althousand miles from any body, cooking my own meat, roasting my own potatoes, mending my own clothes (part of the time washing them), sew ing on my own shirt buttons, and living nearer like a hog or an Indian, generally—and they are synony-mous terms—than I ever excepted to, and with litmous terms—than I ever excepted to, and with inthe prospect of ever being able to better my condition—all for the honor—for so far there has been no profit in it—of being one of Mr. Buchanan's office holders. How I would like to see some one of the many dezens of dandyfied chaps, whom I saw last spring in Washington dangling at the coat-tails of the President and his Cabinst, begging a land office in Nebraska, out here in the willows, with a red flannel shirt on, roasting their potatoes in the ashes, and pounding their coffee in a rag, eating on a pine board, hoe cakes without butter, and dricking their dirty coffee without milk, suffering meanwhite from the premonitory symptoms of the "prairie digs," or ttch, which is an epidemic in this country. It strikes me it would somewhat cool their patriotism, and di-minish their ardor to serve their country in the field of Western enterprise.

There is but little doing in the office, and we are There is but little doing in the office, and we are just living on here in hopes there will be something after awhile. A man ought to have $10,000 a year to stay in this country. On one thing I am determined, I will never spend another winter as I have mined, I will never spend another winter as I have the last. I would "sooner be a dog and bay the moon, or a cat and cry mew," than to be "cooped up" here through a long and gloomy winter, enjoying none of the comforts and deprived of many of the necessaries of life—seeing nothing but one sameless waste of wide, dreary prairie, and nobody but an occasional "bloody filer"—a sprig freshly transplanted from the green isle of Erin—who "wants to file on his land, sure." I have been tempted sometimes just to drop a little note to Mr. Buchanan, that I "don't require his services any longer," pick up my "traps," lock up the "U. S. Land Office," and take r.y way to some place inside the limits of civilization; but then "tis better," it is said, "to bear the ills we have than fly to those we know not of," so I will e'en bottle up my disappointment and await, as patiently as I can, what the future will bring forth.

The Bustling Man.—A "bustling man" is to a man of business what a monkey is to a man. He is the shadow of dispatch, or rather the echo thereof, for he maketh noise enough for an giarum. The quickness of a true man of business he imitateth excellently well, but neither his silence nor his method, and it is to be noted that he is ever most vehement about matters of no significance. He is always in such headlong haste to overtake the next minute, that he loseth half the minute in band; and yet is full of impatience and indignation at other people's slowness, and wasteth more time in relating his love of dispatch than would suffice for doing a great deal of business. He never giveth you his quiet attention with a mind centered on what you are saying, but hears you with a restless eye, and a perpetual shifting of posture; and is so eager to show his quickness that he interrupteth you a dozen times, misunderstands you as often, and ends by making you and himself lose twice as much time as was necessary.

Live Corpses .- One amusing anecdote has been Live Corpses.—One amusing anecdole has been told us, namely, that two gentlemen civilians, rambiling inside the town, came upon a house in which were four or five Jacks sitting down smoking. In the room were several dead Chinese. One of the gentlemen thought he saw a finger of one of the Chinamen move the corpses lying on its face. He called the attention of his friend, a surgeon, to the body, and he first lifted up an arm, then a leg, and let them drop heavily, without any signs of life being observable; but still having his doubts, the muscles observable; but still having his doubts, the muscles being lithe, he applies the toe of his foot forcibly a posterior!, when the supposed dead man sprang up with a yell, bolted out, and escaped, to the intense annusement of the two civilians, and the astonishment of the sailors, which vented itself in exclamations neither choice nor elegant.—China News.

The Diana .- This elegant steamer arrived at the city wharf at half-past ten o'clock this morning, making the trip up in 5 days 91/2 hours. She probably was at Portland before 1 o'clock. The memerandum, which will be found in another column, gives full particulars of the trip up. The run was made under many disadvantages, and places the Diana among the fastest boats in the trade. She will leave for New Orleans this evening positively. In point of accommodations the Diana is not excelled.

The Baltic .- This splendid steamer, which arrived at Portland about half-past 10 o'clock last night in 5 days, 6 hours, and 22 minutes, also leaves for New Orleans this evening. Her memorandum, which was published in the Journal of this morning, is given on the first page of this paper. The Baltic has large and finely furnished cabins and staterooms, and all the requisites to make traveling a luxury. The Baltic's is the best time on record from New Orleans to Portland this season.

The Empress, Antelope, and Chancellor will eave for New Orlaans to morrow.

They had an old grudge and agreed to meet and settle it by figheing with double-burneled shot-gum at ten paces, which they did accordingly. At the first giving of the word both guns missed fire, at the next attempt Hale's gun missed fire, and Lane's went off, pouring its load of buckshot into Hale's body. Hale fell, and Lane went up to him and beat him on the bead and Lane went up to him and beat him on the head with his gun, breaking the gun. Lane had not been a rested this morning, the people appearing to regard it as a fair fight.

THE POLICE AND THE COMPLAINT AGAINST THEM.

Masses. Editors: While I have little disposition to appear in the public prints, or make myself conspicuous in the papers of the city, yet I am constrained, as an act of justice, to notice an editorial that appeared in the Courier of this morning, in reference to the Police of the city, ac.

The Courier blames the police for want of a discharge of this morning, in reference to the destroying of the shrubbery, &c. of W. H. Stokes, Fsq., and others, and attempts to make political capital out of the same. Now I must be permitted to say, that, while I am opp-sed throughout to the politics of the powers that rule this city, yet at the same time I am satisfied that, to take the police of the city in the aggregate, there is no city that has a better, more vicilant, or honorable set of officers than Louisville, or who perform more service for the same pay. I am forced to this conclusion from having, as an attorney, had much to do with the city court of this city, where I have had every apportunity of finding out the acts and doings of the police of the city, yet I prier to fight the enemy upon principles, and feel that it is a duty I owe the public to rustain the officers of the city, yet I prier to fight the enemy upon principles, and certain I am that, from all I can learn, no blame attaches to the police of the city for want of duty in refer ace to the matters complained of in the article in the Courier of this morning.

Another Illinois Prisoner Defying his Keepees—The town was thrown into consternation on Tuesday by the report that Tromas Downie, who was in jail charged with burglary, was literally killing himself by inches. Immediately a crowd collected at the jail and soon had evidence that the report was well founded. They found Downie without his coat, his arms and legs bare, engaged in hacking these limbs with a razor, and as a matter of course the blood was flowing profusely from the wounds. He expressed his determination to end his life in that slow and torturing manner, and declared that he would kill any person who undertook to prevent him from carrying out his determination. Beside his razor, he had in his possession an iron stove leg, fourteen inches in length. With this formidable weapon he stood ready to knock any man's brains out who should enter his cell, and being an active and determined person, would no doubt have made a vigorous attempt to carry out his threat. ANOTHER ILLINOIS PRISONER DEFYING HIS made a vigorous attempt to carry out his threat.

During the whole day he conversed with his acquaintances, whom he could see from the cell window, and the openings in the door. He said he had made up his mind to commit suicide, and no power on earth could prevent him. Rum drinking had brought him to his present condition, and he had no with to live longer, a burden to himself had no with to live longer, a burden to himself and a disgrace to his friends. He took this method of destroying his life in orand a disgrace to his friends.

He took this method of destroying his life in order that his death might be lastingly impressed upon his associates, and that his melancholy end might prove a warning sufficient to keep them from the vice by which he had been ruined; for their good he thus traffared himself as a living sacrifice." At he thus "offered himself as a living sacrifice." At sundown he should cut his throat, and then set fire to his cell, hoping to be consumed to ashes in the flames. This, with sundry threats against individuals, and the confession of the crime with which he is charged, which he declared he had committed while drunk was the burden of his remarks.

ted while drunk, was the burden of his remarks. The cutting was accompanied with singing of hymns. But the "sacrifice" was not destined to be as complete as he contemplated. Various methods were suggested of securing him, but none of them were effectual. Finally, while near the window, a quantity of cayenne pepper was thrown into his eyes, and thus, blinded and thrown off his guard, he was secured.

He handed a letter to the sheriff, addressed to his brother, at Cleveland, O. He asks pardon of his brother for the disgrace he has brought upon him, and desires his body to be carried to Cleveland and and desires his body to be carried to Cleveland and buried by the side of his sister.

On being taken to the doctor's room his wounds were examined and found to be severe, but not dangerous. His left arm was gashed in many places, but his legs were only slightly cut. His limbs are now extremely stiff and sore and he is weak from loss of blood. But he is in no danger from his wounds. He still declares that he will kill himself whenever opportunity offers, and has commenced starving himself. This is a strange affair. The reason of Downie's conduct is yet inexplicable, and whether drunkenness, actual or assumed insanity, led hun to these proceedings remains to be explained. There seemed too much "method in his maders." for a maning and his room mark. The Review ness' for a maniac, and his room-mate, Dr. Reeves, says he has had no liquor of any account to his

Downie had threatened to take Reeves's life for veral days, and on the morning of this occurrence to latter had been removed to another cell.

Downie is a Scotchman by birth, twenty-five or six years of age, and has resided in this town for about two years. A Lady Burned to Death.—A few nights since, Mrs. Charles Barnett, of Newtown, twelve miles west of this place, was burned to death at an early hour of the night. Some passers by discovered a fire in the bouse, and on opening the door they found Mrs. Barrett Iying upon the floor, having burned to a crisp. The husband lay in a bed in the room in a beautly state of intoxication, while her son was in a room over head. She had been washing during the day and was setting by a table sewing at the time day and was setting by a table sewing at the time of the occurrence. It is supposed that, worn out by fatigue, she fell asleep in the chair, and that when she was awakened by the heat and smoke from the fire on head dress about a supplicated before she could fire on her dress, she was suffocated before she could give the alarm .- Paris Flay.

Female Rioters.—Four or five females were arrested and tried last week at Mt. Vernon for assaulting and egging a German Methodist clergyman. They waylad him as he was leaving the church after an evening meeting, and pelted him with stale eggs. A brother of the church who attempted to shield the preacher was knocked down and roughly handled. A fine of $2 and costs was imposed on the female assailants and a $10 fine on a male abettor. The reason alleged in extenuation was that the clergyman had made some unwarrantable inuendoes in the pulpit against the characters of his assailants. Evansville Journal.

OXLEY'S MONTHLY TOBACCO CIRCULAR. Per Arabia.] LONDON, March 3, 1858.

Per Arabia.] London, March 3, 1858.

With reference to our last circuier, dated 4th ult., we have now to report that, after an unusually long period of stagnation in the London market, during which the transactions were of the most retail character, a more general business was done in the course of the month just closed, and the sales, which are estimated at about 1,360 hdm, enable us to give practical quotations in lieu of the previous nominal ones able us to give practical quotations in lieu of the previous nominal ones.

The largest proportion of the purchases has been on the part of manufacturers, for the purposes of actual consumption, and has consisted of Western strips of the last and previous import, the latter description having commanded a higher price in accordance with the superior quality of the crop from which it was made.

Virginia strips have been neglected, but leaf of that growth as well as Western has been in fair demand. Marylands of fine quality, and especially with color, have met with ready buyers at current rates, but the common and inferior quadities are almost unsalentide.

The market is entirely free from excitement, and the existing stock being now much concentrated, no material alteration in its position is likely to take place until the period of a new importation approaches. In the mean time, the views of operators will be influenced by the nature of advices from the United States relating to the quantity of strips to be pressured for the ensuing season, and the probable extent of land devoted to the cultivation of a new crop, which from all accounts hitherto received, is likely to be ususually large.

We take this opportunity of informing our friends that arrangements have been made for the future warehousing to loacco, upon terms nearly identical with those in operation prior to the 25th of August, 1857. Referring to the subjoined statement of stocks, &c:

LIVERPOOL, March 5, 1858.

Nothing has occurred during the past mouth to after the character of the Liverpool tobacco market. We find the same indisposition to operate to any extent, whilst, on the other hand, there is no pressure to eff. et sales beyond the demand, so that prices have remained steady, as quoted in our last monthly circular.

The month's sales do not exceed 500@550 hhds, of which about one half was Western stemmed and 100 Marylands to the trade; the remainder being in small distributions of other current descriptions, with scarcely any transactions for exportation.

Great difficulty is experienced in estimating into account. LIVERPOOL, March 5, 1858.

Great difficulty is experienced in getting into consumption the Western strips of last year's make, owing to their mixed character and general want of substance, so much so that even a marked difference in price fails to avert the preference given to the old stock, and our quotations must be regarded as strictly applicable to the latter.

The market is altogether devoid of animation or

A CARD.

We would respectfully call the attention of the public te a marine chronometer placed in our window, showing the exact time. It is entirely of window, showing the exact time. It is entirely of the World's Fair in Paris in competition with the best London and French Chronometers, and also at the World's Fair in New York, and in or ry instance has received the highest premium for unequalled workmanship and correct time-keeping.

To our watch department we have secured the services of Mr. Ed. Helwig, of New York. Mr. H. can execute any kind of watch-work fully equal to Jurgensen, Frodsham, Adams, or any of the first London or Swiss makers.

In many fine Watches that are broken, parts are substituted greatly inferior to the original, the customer paying the full price for a perfect piece of work. The Watch apparently performs well afterward for a while, but is more imperfect and less valuable than originally.
